Oxford Brookes University Publication Scheme

Who we are and what we do

Who we are
Oxford Brookes University began in 1865 as the Oxford School of Art. Following subsequent expansions, the institution was renamed as the ‘Oxford City Technical School’ in 1891, then ‘Oxford Polytechnic’ in 1970 when it became famous for pioneering the modular system. In 1992 it gained university status, and received its current name (after John Brookes, Vice-Principal 1928 -1956). In 2000 Westminster College Oxford merged with Oxford Brookes University.

The university has three campuses based in or around Oxford and one in Swindon. It has eight academic schools, six directorates, has over 19,000 students, employs 2,500+ staff and is the eighth largest employer in Oxfordshire. 18% of our students are international students representing more than 140 countries worldwide.

Oxford Brookes University has partnerships with fourteen institutions in the UK. See http://www.brookes.ac.uk/studying/learning/flexible/partnership

It also runs courses in collaboration with six overseas partners. See: http://www.brookes.ac.uk/international/countries/partnerships

There are also exchange agreements in place with over 100 institutions worldwide in Australia, Canada, Europe, Hong Kong, Japan and the United States. See: http://www.brookes.ac.uk/international/exchanges/partners

Governance
The Board of Governors is responsible for determining the overall mission of the University but the day to day running of the university rests with the Vice-Chancellor and two Deputy Vice-Chancellors. The current Chancellor of the university is human rights campaigner Shami Chakrabarti.

Continuing Professional Development (short courses)

Oxford Brookes University also offers a range of established programmes to help develop the skills of the local workforce. We provide Continuing Professional Development (CPD), ranging from one day conferences and short courses to part-time master level qualifications across many industry sectors to suit employees at all levels. We are the main provider of CPD to the county’s teachers and architects. See: www.brookes.ac.uk/business_employers/cpd

Research and Consultancy

The university has a growing reputation for research and consultancy. In addition to its academic research it provides expert and professional advice across a range of industry sectors and business functions from short term problem solving to longer term business efficiency studies. See: www.brookes.ac.uk/business_employers/consultancy

Knowledge Transfer Partnerships

Oxford Brookes has formed knowledge transfer partnerships with a number of organisations from small companies to multinationals. See: www.brookes.ac.uk/business_employers/ktp

What we spend and how we spend it

The university publishes its financial accounts annually. See: www.brookes.ac.uk/about/structure/annual_accounts

The University’s Financial Regulations covering Standards of conduct and probity expected of staff, Control framework for expenditure, Pay and expenses, Income generating activities, and Risk Management are available from the Director of Finance and Legal Services.

For information on tendering, procurement and contracts contact the university’s Information Compliance Officer. See the ‘Contacting us’ section of this document for details.

What our priorities are and how we are doing

The university’s current strategy ends in 2010. See: www.brookes.ac.uk/about/structure/mission

Oxford Brookes University is currently developing a new strategy to run from 2010 to 2020. Initial consultation has been completed and the Project Steering Group, chaired by the Vice-Chancellor, will be drafting a strategy document, the White Paper, to be published Easter 2009. Further consultation will follow with the aim of finalising a strategy during summer 2009. See: www.brookes.ac.uk/about/structure/2020

Teaching Quality

All courses meet the requirements of the government’s Quality Assurance Agency, with twenty-four subject areas rated excellent for teaching quality. See: www.brookes.ac.uk/about/facts/teaching

Research

In the 2008 government Research Assessment Exercise (RAE) a broad range of subjects were rated ‘internationally excellent’. More than three quarters of Brookes research has been internationally recognised. See: www.brookes.ac.uk/res
