Welcome to the March/April newsletter about recent developments related to our suite of MA degrees in International Relations.

Dr. Stephen Hurt (Course Director, MA in International Relations).

Fee-waiver scholarship available for international students

A new annual MA International Relations (all pathways) fee-waiver scholarship is available to international students with suitable academic credentials. This will cover 100% of the tuition fees (£13,620) and is open to international students starting their course in September 2016. An application form for the fee-waiver scholarship is available from anagy@brookes.ac.uk and must be returned by midnight on Thursday 30th June 2016.

Oxford Brookes amongst world elite for Politics and International Studies

We are excited to announce that Politics and International Studies at Oxford Brookes, has been ranked in the top 150 institutions worldwide. The QS World University Rankings by Subject evaluated over 4,000 universities in total. Earlier this year, the Times Higher Education also announced that Oxford Brookes was in the world's top 200 universities for its international outlook.

MA Careers Workshop

Our current students had the opportunity to attend a dedicated careers workshop in early March. This was run by our colleagues in the Careers Centre and featured contributions from three alumni of the degree programme. Feedback from students was very positive and in particular they found it invaluable to hear about the career paths of our alumni. Julia Hanne is currently a communications officer at the Overseas Development Institute and she was able to join the event via skype. Laurence Goodchild is an assistant editor with the academic publisher Taylor & Francis. Nikki Green is a HR and Administration Manager at PRIME Research. We are very grateful to Julia, Laurence and Nikki for their support of this event. You can find profiles of some of our former students at <http://www.social-sciences.brookes.ac.uk/people/students/Postgraduate/International-Studies/>
