

WORKSHOP

HOW TO HANDLE AGE DIVERSITY IN TIMES OF AN AGEING WORKFORCE

Is age diversity an issue for your organisation?

The Centre for Diversity Policy Research and Practice at Oxford Brookes University has recently completed a study on best practice for achieving age diversity during recruitment. As a follow-up, we're running a free workshop on good practice in this area, looking at recruitment practices and ways to maximise the potential of an age-diverse workforce. The workshop will be held on Friday 30th September 9am-1pm and on Tuesday 4th October 1pm-5pm.

Why take part:

- Knowledge transfer around diversity in HR-Selection focusing on an ageing workforce
- Networking opportunities

Workshop details:

The workshop will be held at Oxford Brookes University's Headington Campus in Oxford, which is well connected by public transport. Car parking spaces are limited. Dr Ulrike Fasbender and Kate Clayton-Hathway will run the workshop, which contains three major elements:

- The theoretical framework around diversity in HR-selection with a special focus on the ageing workforce;
- Case studies integrating different business perspectives (i.e., from SME to large scale organisations, private vs. public sector, third party recruitment, etc.);
- Practically relevant and scientifically sound recommendations to be transferred into practice by managers and HR-specialists as well as their organisations.

Registration:
